Thus, year after year has rolled along; each bringing with them one trials to be undergone; and oh! dearest friend, how all is changed. Henry has forgotten his vows, and the oace tender and affection husband, is now become a monster. Here she closed ber short but painful tale; while the tears started from her mild blue eyes; and ran in orrents down her pailed checks. Where is he? (exclaimed I.) I know not, (replied she), as I have not seen him since yesterday. and after the arrival of a few charitable neighbours, I took my leave and returned to the village.

At length the day appointed for the interment came. The sun arose vesiled in clouds, as if anture seemed to mourn the day on which Heary Morton was to be consigned to his mother earth.

A report, said is have come from the lips of the King was made to every troop and company of cavalry and infantry: citizen-soliter and solder-citizens—that the Foles had gained a great victory over the Russian—killed 16,000 of them, and taken 15,000 more, with from 30 to 80 pieces of cannon.

and taken 15,000 more, with from 30 to 80 pieces of camono.

Words cannot convey the electric effect of this intelligence on the troops and the public who instantly learned it. From that moment, 10 o clock at noos, until one this morning, Paris rang with shouts and triumphant songs. I fear that the report was only an exaggeration of those received by Chramowski's success over Rudiger, and, if so, the policy of the rose become unquestionable. One of the results, however, so striking, that it will not have been hast upon these who concocted it. I mean the complete fraternisation of the National Chards and troops of the line. "Vive la Polonge!" was the first and overwhelming shout that burst from the lips of every man of the 130,000 under arms.

"Vive In Garde Nationale de Panis!" "Vive In Garde Nationale de Banisu!" "Vive In Gerde Nationale de Banisu!" "Vive In the views In the vive In Eagle!" "Se reciprocally slouted freue line to line!"

Many of them have already been caught, and the rest are hunted like panthers, and unceasing will be the pursuit until they are taken or slot. There is a large number in Southampten jail; the court is now-trying them, and has already condemned eleven out of twelve. This is but the commencement. This opinion is now that of some among the first medical characters of the age. Although invisible and incoercible, these animalcula may be known by their effects, and in some cases they may even be felt as if creeping over you.

There has lately been a great increase of some of these even in America, of which we have several instances on record: among others, a new disease of the skin has appeared in the New England states, properly ascribed to minute insects breeding in the barley straw used for beds; and many may this year have experienced, the myself, in travelling, the prurient affection occasioned by sleeping on mattresses of Spanish mosa, whereby a crowd of animalcula appear to rise from them and attack the nose and cyelprows, where you can feel them creeping over the har.

This milk the Harvard University, roun Mr. Leithideld, the American Consul at Pearlo Cabelial. This milk electroness, and one hundred and forty for eight conferences, and one hundred and forty for eight control of the burk, had been a close resemblance to cow's milk, or rather cream. By exposure to the air, it becomes brown, and, by depicing. It is changed into war, which burns with a pure and strong light. The colour, and taste of the milk are like those of our sour ground. Hundled and other travellers, have described the consults of the confidence of the milk are like those of our sour ground. Hundled the confidence of the charty the consulters and the confidence of the milk are like those of our sour ground.
